

Hi C.....

I should start this e-mail off by telling you I was a total bridezilla! I planned my wedding right down to picking every single song the DJ played. That being said, I cannot think of one negative thing to say about Candace and Kevin.

Our first meeting was with Kevin and we knew right away we liked him. He was very easy going and had a great personality. He also seemed to know right from our initial meeting what vision we had for our video.

Initially my husband wanted to forgo a videographer, he thought that was an area where we should cut costs. On our honeymoon, before we had ever watched our wedding video, he told me that he felt like we didn't pay Candace and Kevin enough money. That should say it all right?

On the day of our wedding Candace and Kevin showed up probably an hour and a half to two hours before the ceremony and they were with us until our reception ended at 11 p.m. They were so non-evasive (unlike my photographer), we hardly knew they were there. There were a couple times during my reception where something was happening and I thought that I had to find Kevin and Candace to ask them to make sure to get it on video. But, when they were right there filming. It's like they knew without ever being told exactly who the important people we wanted on film were and what moments we would want filmed.

When we got our video we were beyond thrilled. When i tell you we have watched it 6 times in 3 or 4 months I'm not kidding. It is such a perfect mix of being emotional yet hilarious. Maybe I'm biased, but it is so not boring like some wedding videos can be.

One of my girlfriends who was at our wedding, is getting married in September. She's on a tight budget and told me from the getgo she was not having a videographer. I tried very strongly to convince her she would regret it and so she met with Kevin and Candace, watched our video, and now she's booked them for her September wedding.

If my house were burning down and I could pick only one, my wedding video or my wedding photos (and they are good, it's not that my photographer didn't do a good job, we were thrilled with them), we both would pick our wedding video.

I think that the wedding video is so important because you are so nervous that you honestly forget your vows. We trusted Kevin and Candace and told them that if they thought they had enough footage to make our video an hour and a half rather than an hour to do it and they did and it was the right decision. We decided to include our entire ceremony on the video because you don't get to see everyone walk down the aisle and like i said, you are so nervous that you forget the ceremony, it's a blur. Plus there's footage of grandparents and parents that you might be really glad to have one day.

We bought our unedited wedding footage also and when you watch that and then watch the video you realize just how much goes into putting this video together and how talented Candace and Kevin our. I know that if you look around on the knot message boards, there are some cheaper less-experienced videographers out there. My opinion is you get what you what you pay for and honestly Candace and Kevin should charge a lot more than they do for their services. They are truly talented individuals and I find it hard to believe that you could get their quality service from any other vendor.

Anyhow, sorry this is so long. I hope it helps make your decision easier and that you decide to go with Pittsburgh Wedding DVD. I promise you that you will be thrilled!

Best of luck, M.M. Pittsburgh, PA
